MarCom Wins DOE Small Business of the Year Award

MarCom, LLC is thrilled to announce the company has won the Department of Energy's Small Business of the Year Award for Fiscal Year 2019.

MarCom was nominated for this award by the Idaho National Laboratory (INL) due to their exemplary support of INL's recent award-winning project, the Remote-Handled Low-Level Waste (RHLLW) Disposal Facility. This facility enables safe disposal of low-level radioactive waste generated at the INL.

MarCom delivered technical support and comprehensive software development for RHLLW, allowing immense productivity and efficiency gains to support the start of operations and the recovery from a six-month construction delay due to inclement weather and equipment failures. With the support of the MarCom team, the facility was completed for $4.7 million less than the baseline cost estimate and six months ahead of schedule, despite the early delays.

Stacey Francis, INL's Small Business Program manager, says MarCom has "Always been able to provide unique services to the lab, with their critical staff augmentation support and strong quality assurance background."

Marcella Medor, MarCom's president, would like to thank her staff for their hard work and dedication to the company, "The people that work with you make the difference between a business that can flourish and one that stays stagnant. Here at MarCom, we have some truly excellent staff."

MarCom is an SBA-certified, Native American-owned, 8(a), and woman-owned small business with offices in Idaho Falls, Idaho, Butte, Montana, and Fort Collins, Colorado. Founded in 2003, MarCom has grown to over 115 employees and provides waste management, environmental services, radiological controls, engineering, nuclear-operations, information technology services.
